ORLAND CHURCH ISSUES A CALL TO PRAYER

A Call to Prayer goes out to all people. You are invited to join in a fellowship of prayer the world around, on the World Day Of Prayer, Friday March 8, at 2 P. M. in the Methodist Church in Orland Park. The first Friday in Lent; Everybody welcome.

Lord, make me an instrument of Thy Peace! Where there is hatred, let me show love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; to be understood as to understand; to be loved as to love.

For It Is In Giving that we receive; it is in pardoning that we are pardoned; it is in dying that we are born to eternal life. Amen.

RURAL TELEPHONES HAVE INCREASED 150 PER CENT

During the last ten years, 1935 to 1945, the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. has extended its rural telephone service to the point where the number of rural telephones increased 150 percent while the total number of Illinois Bell subscribers increased only 54 percent. In spite of a serious shortage of instruments and equipment existing at the time, telephone service was supplied to nearly 3,000 additional families, in rural areas in the territory in which it operates, during 1945. This increase was approximately 40 percent higher than that for 1944. One of the Telephone Company's objectives for rural areas in 1946 is an increase of 9,000 telephones which will be the largest rural increase for any year in the Company's history.

Early in 1945 the Telephone Company announced a 3 million dollar rural telephone improvement program. To make possible adequate and complete planning for this program the company conducted field studies and customer surveys. A large amount of the field survey work and on the spot planning had been accomplished before the war's end. Experienced survey men, under the direction of a special Rural Committee, travelled hundreds of road-miles in Illinois to determine exact needs for rural service. The Telephone Company also wished to be sure that the service provided would be satisfactory, and to this end present rural customers were queried by means of a survey as to their views and preferences. These opinions are now being used as guides in extending new lines and improving the quality of service.

The Company has already made progress in extending other improvements. These include, reducing the number of rural subscribers on a line, replacing many of the old crank type telephones with more modern instruments and, wherever possible, improving the ringing signals on rural lines in such a way that the customer hears fewer rings of the other parties on his line. In 1946 these improvements will receive even more emphasis.

Kaw River Has Stolen
145 of 175-Acre Farm

ST. MARYS, KANS.—When Ferdinand Wild renewed his subscription recently to the St. Marys Star, he remarked wistfully that he would be a lucky fellow if he could renew his land so easily. A retired farmer, now in his mid-seventies, Mr. Wild is certain he stands first in the business of surrendering high-priced soil to the Kaw river.

Back in 1918, when he bought the farm where he lives south of the river, Mr. Wild held title to 170 acres of fertile bottom land on the Wabunsee county side of the river south of St. Marys. Since that time, however, the cave-ins and erosion have frisked him of all but 25 acres of the farm.

Up and down the ungovernable stream he has neighbors who can recall losing 20 acres here and 40 acres over yonder as the swollen Kaw has taken its toll each spring and fall. But Ferdinand believes he is in a class by himself. His finest land has vanished during the last quarter of a century—land that observers valued at more than $20,000.

Across the river on this side, he still has a hundred acres of good soil that has rarely been clipped by cave-ins. But the record was almost as disastrous in 1945. Overflows that came often during the high water last spring played another trick on philosophical Ferdinand. From the hundred good acres on the north side he raised a crop that looked like the flag-end of a drouth season in the mid-thirties—600 bushels of corn.

Ferdinand has heard that the war years were great years for the farmer.

"Maybe so, maybe so," he mutters, "but which year and which farmer?"

May Name 'Bald'
Peak for General

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sen. Edwin F. Johnson of Colorado told Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, army chief of staff, that the state hoped to name a mountain in the general's honor.

"You have Pike's Peak now and you want Ike's Peak?" the general shot back quickly.

The senator agreed. "I have only two conditions," General Eisenhower explained. "First, you want to be certain it is a bald-headed peak, and then I want to be certain there is good fishing nearby where I can get a priority."

Cattle Rustlers
Busy in Illinois

MANTENO, ILL.—Shades of the Wild West! Farmers in the Manteno area may organize a vigilante committee to hunt cattle rustlers, according to the Manteno News.

In the meantime, there has been no trace of the thieves who recently stole nine head of cattle from the Sylvester Thilmony farm, nor of those who took four head from the Roy D. Piper farm.

Farm Advisor George Tupper has stated that the directors of the farm bureau in five townships around Manteno may organize a vigilante committee to combat cattle stealing.

Plan to Withhold Food to End Strikes

EDGAR, NEB.—A nation-wide farmers' "strike against strikes" is the object of Clay county farmers. They voted to withhold their products from market until industrial disputes are settled.

V. Hubert Johnson, who helped organize a meeting at which 271 farmers voted the action, explained the objective.

"You might say we've got our Irish up," the 48-year-old farmer declared. "We need farm tools and

Air Force Vets
Are Organized

WASHINGTON.—A new national veterans organization, for members of the air forces of World Wars I and II, has been set up, with former Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle as temporary president.

Doolittle known as the AFA, the Air Force association.

Key figures of the organization called on President Truman to inform him of the AFA and its aims. The organizers include such former air force men as Col. Willis S. Fitch, its executive director; Sgt. Forest Vossler, Syracuse university, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor; Lt. Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, who shot down the plane carrying Admiral Yamamoto, now of Boise, Idaho; Sgt. Merrill Forst, captain of the 1945 Dartmouth football team; and Col. James M. Stewart, former 8th air force squadron commander and now back in Hollywood.

Whew! What a
Day for Rancher
In California!

KERMAN, CALIF.—Roy Bowers, Kerman rancher, will never forget January 16, 1946, for on that day:

He had to get out of a warm bed very early.

Ice formed on the windshield of his car.

The motor stopped and wouldn't start again.

He lost a race with the stork. And his house caught fire while he was away.

"It all started when Bowers was forced to get up from a warm bed because the stork couldn't wait," the Kerman News reported. "He had to rush his daughter, Mrs. Lola Stewart, to a Fresno hospital."

"All went well until ice formed on the windshield of the car and Bowers had to get out and start scraping. Then the motor refused to run. After a few grinds from the starter Bowers went to a nearby farm house to seek assistance. When he returned to his car Bowers found that the stork had proven too much of a match and he was now a proud grandfather; the baby had arrived."

While in Kerman that day his ranch house caught fire, with no one at home to fight it. Fortunately, Bowers knew nothing about that part of the day until he returned home—to find that his good neighbors had formed a bucket brigade and extinguished the blaze with little damage done.

KNITTING... While the Pearl Harbor investigation went on, Pfc. Annette Hatcher of Gaffney, S. C., chauffeur assigned to Gen. Walter C. Short, sat on the sidelines deeply engrossed in her knit one, purl one.

machinery, bathtubs and refrigerators.

Although a resolution adopted at the meeting said "we are not taking sides in the industrial battles," Johnson said that most farmers here blame labor rather than management.

"When we shut off sources of food," he declared, "strikers will work or starve."

Similar action was taken by farmers at Chickasha, Okla.

Soil Proven Cause
Of Cattle Disease

Cobalt, Iodine, Copper
Deficiencies Found

Recent investigations conducted by the American Veterinary Medical association has pointed a way to better health among farm animals. Many livestock diseases have been traced directly to the soil of fields and pastures.

A wasting-away condition found in many localities has been traced to a deficiency of the earthy element called "cobalt." In every case, this condition was remedied when top dressing of superphosphate, containing less than a tin-cupful per ton, was applied to the land.

Carnation Ormsby Madcap Fayne could never have established her record on a pasture deficient in proper elements.

Lack of iodine in the soil and water often causes prenatal goiter and stillbirth in all species of animals, as well as poor hatchability of eggs.

Sway-back has been traced to a lack of copper in the soil. As little as two tablespoonfuls of copper salt mixed with each hundred pounds of salt lick will do away with the sway-back trouble.

Deficiencies of manganese, of phosphorus, zinc and calcium may also be responsible for mysterious losses among flocks and herds which are apparently given good care and feeding. A suggested remedy is a soil survey followed by the addition of the missing element in the manure or fertilizer applied to the soil.

Selection Prevents

Broken Down Udders

While there is no known cure for a cow with a broken down udder, they can usually be prevented by proper breeding selection. Weak udders are inherited. Some strains have them more than others. In selecting foundation stock breeders should choose only cows whose udders are so well attached that there is little likelihood that they will break down for several years. There is always a danger of break down caused by severe injury.

At the first suggestion of an oversized udder, calf heifers should be fed lightly on grain, substituting bran or other laxative feeds for most of the carbohydrate feeds, such as corn and barley.

Other beneficial steps are milking before freshening, as soon as the udder gets large, and three times a day milking of the heavy producers for several weeks after freshening.

Improved Machinery
Water System

This new water system is so designed that the same pump may be used for either shallow or deep well service. Made by F. E. Myers & Bros. Co., Ashland, Ohio.

If the water level changes, the pump is quickly converted by removing tap bolts with ordinary tools and attaching simple fittings.

Popcorn Promises Real

Return in Many Areas

The American appetite for popcorn is expected to continue strong for some years to come. While the profit from popcorn is not fabulous, the growing of the crop is "very little extra trouble."

It is possible to secure contracts for the raising of popcorn for seed purposes. North Carolina farmers report that they have been receiving from 10 to 12 cents a pound for their popcorn.

Man About Town:

Champion Joe Louis in the RKO gateway quietly downing a huge beaker of milk. . . . Lt. Col. Greg Boyington says he is called "Gramps" or "Skipper" by those who know him, not "Pappy." . . . The much decorated war hero at Reuben's being told by his mother to "eat all his vegetables." . . . Reaction of Cliff Mack to the paintings of W. Churchill: "Well, at least they're better than Hitler's."

Von Ribbentrop has requested a Jewish lawyer (instead of an alienist). . . . If you see a man's discharge button with a ball-and-chain dangling from it—he was a prisoner of war. . . . Pat, the popular newsboy at Miami Beach, got off his best quip the day Churchill arrived there. "Hide yer money!" he extra'd. "The British are coming!" . . . Ho, hum. Everybody on strike except the tax collectors!

Faces About Midtown: Charles Coburn, plus his monocle, strolling along 5th Avenue—and teen-agers gleefully exclaiming: "Oooh, look! There's Jean Arthur's father!" . . . Joe Cotten, the star, gabbing in the Stork with Kenneth Friede—the producer who once paid him $40 per week in a play. Joseph today gets $100,000 per film. . . . Victor Moore of "Nellie Bly" and his bride. Don't feel sorry for Victor because of the show's sour notices. He's down to his last million. . . . Book-writer J. Gunther and the chomping Marina Svetlova, the premiere danseuse at the Met. . . . Cesar Romero, who used to hoof for coffee-and-cake coin, spinning Renee DeMarco in a waltz at the Cotillion Room. . . . Helmut Dantine, the star, thrilled over becoming an American. . . . Ex-Mayor LaGuardia, who had it changed to the Avenue of the Americas, yelling at a friend: "You must come up to see my new offices on SIXTH Avenue!"

Sounds in the Night: At the Carnival: "Judging by the notices on 'Nellie Bly' the critics didn't do right by Nell." . . . At the Versailles: "That much-married playboy oughta change his name to Girlville!" . . . At the Boulevard: "Oh, Heel be around!" . . . At the Enduro: "She's playing second fiddle." . . . Lou Holtz (at the Miami Beach-comber): "I had a very smooth trip down. Only two wrecks!" . . . Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator (to a much criticized gov't exec): "It took me 2½ years to be called the No. One So-and-So. It took you only 2½ weeks!" . . . In the Washington Press club: "He goes around acting so obnoxious because he wants everybody to think he's syndicated." . . . At Reuben's: "She's very dull. Never knocks anyone!"

Quotations of the Town: F. Scott Fitzgerald: The silver pepper of the stars. . . . Roger White: Any one discriminating against race or religion is a discriminator. . . . Tom Reddy: She was wearing a hatrocity. . . . Ralph Edwards: As fleeting as babyhood to a parent. . . . H. Carten: A moth leads an awful life. He spends the summer in a fur coat and the winter in a bathing suit. . . . Clare Luce: It's such a scary feeling to see wrinkles creeping in—time's little mice. . . . L. Brown: You can't draw from sweet memories unless you make regular deposits. . . . B. D. Gibson: The beach displayed a wide variety of femininity. . . . Anon: A career is all right for a woman, but she can't run her fingers through its hair.

Quotation Marksmanship: Ambrose Bierce: A scrapbook is edited by a fool. . . . Jack Elinson: Looks like America is now the Land of the Free For All. . . . Allen Raymond: Editors are 3rd basemen whose legs have gone. . . . H. Davies: Funny, but the ashes of a broken heart can stir up more heat than the flare of a new flame. . . . James Cannon: He talks about himself like a guy who just left the room. . . . Disraeli: Every man has a right to be conceited until he is successful. . . . Rev. R. W. Sockman: The test of courage comes when we are in the minority; the test of tolerance comes when we are in the majority. . . . John Buchan: Little towns dumb with snow under the winter moon. . . . J. Conrad: Kisses are what's left of the language of Paradise. . . . Damon Runyon: She has an ice-cream cone where her heart is supposed to be. . . . Anon: Nazism is like small-pox. It leaves permanent scars on its victims. . . . When you see a married couple coming down the street the one ahead is the one that's mad.

Sallies in Our Alley: Two columnists were discussing their sons. . . . The first 3-dotted said: "Do you want him to become a columnist when he grows up?" . . . "N-h-n," said the other. . . . "Why not? What's wrong with becoming a columnist?" . . . "I don't want him to be another imitator!" . . . George Jessel's speech at the Alfred E. Smith memorial delighted everyone. George was immaculately groomed—white tie, tails, etc. . . . A warning: "Hey, George, fergossacks don't lie down—or somebody'll bury you!"

Ann Rutledge School News

We have been doing Junior Red Cross work. For the month of February we made 29 posters. The fourth and fifth grade girls made 22 carnival hats for Valentine Day. These were done beautifully. We hope they make more because they were made as well as the older girls. We made 103 nut cups for Washington's birthday. These were very dainty and were made of lace doilies trimmed with red yarn. There were 110 menu covers made for St. Patrick's Day. On them were the cutest pigs you ever saw.

Junior Goering has a sore throat from imitating Donald Duck.

Williamae Hawks has been absent because of a very bad cold. We hope she will be back soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyler treated the whole school on Valentines Day with candy filled Dixie cups. The box they held them was beautifully decorated. Thank you Mr. and Mrs. Tyler.

We had our usual Valentine box. Its sides bulged. Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Davidson gave Eskimo pies for Valentines. Howard Myers went home sick Thursday noon.

We have been making squares for an afghan for Red Cross. Some if the boys are doing as well as the girls.

Delma Rains was 11 years old Feb. 18th.

Shirley and Nancy Boze were on the sick list Friday.

At last our Reading Circle Books have been ordered. We shifted furniture Friday. Everyone moved his desk to a new place. A change of scenery did us all good. Our windows and blackboards have been redecorated by the first four grades.

We received an interesting letter from George Letts Saturday. He told us of his visit to Carlsbad Caverns, Grand Canyon, Boulder Dam, Petrified Forests and Painted Desert. He is now in California enjoying the beautiful scenery.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

OLD JUDGE: "Hank, you're a big grain producer...let me ask you a question or two?"

HANK: "Glad to have you, Judge."

OLD JUDGE: "Do you think the grain used by distillers is wasted as some folks are saying?"

HANK: "I certainly do Not! As a matter of fact, it is just the opposite."

OLD JUDGE: "How do you figure that, Hank?"

HANK: "From my own experience and from reports I've read. For the year endin' last June, the distillers produced over 1,200,000,000 pounds of distillers' dried grains...the best feed supplements we can lay our hands on. They are rich in nutrients. Why...I've never had such fat dairy cows, livestock and poultry as I have since I've been usin' these dried grains."

OLD JUDGE: "How do you use them, Hank?"

HANK: "I blend them in with original grain. This balanced ration has far greater feed value than the original grain itself. I can cut down on my whole grain feeding about 20% and still get better results."

One Time Telegraph Tells of Interesting Days In Mokena 43 Years Ago

Along in 1903 a boomer telegraph operator by the name of Harold L. Johnston was night operator in the depot in Mokena. In December 1945 issue of Railroad Magazine appears a long illustrated feature story by Mr. Johnston under the heading "A Rambling Op" in which he tells of his varied experiences as an operator on many railroads in this country.

In his highly interesting account of the time he worked for the Rock Island, Mr. Johnston tells the following story of his stay in Mokena:

"When the Burlington had nothing, the chief dispatcher called up Mr. M. J. McCormick, the Rock Island chief. That afternoon, M. J. M. hired me, and I traveled to Mokena, Ill., to become night operator. Mokena was a German town with five or six saloons. The local boys had organized a real German band and would meet nightly in front of one of the saloons, play a tune and then get invited in for big schooners of beer. When the free beer was done, they'd move to the next until they had completed the rounds. It took me only a week to get a job hammering the huge bass drum.

"About this time, the Rock Island had inaugurated a crack train, the Golden State Limited. The whole system was on its toes for her maiden trip. Fennimore, the dapper trainmaster was to act as conductor, and every brass hat would be eyeing it from the time she left Chicago until she pulled into Los Angeles. The night of her first run was the same night I had invited the band to meet in the large waiting room for practice. Reinie, the leader, lifted his baton, and within a minute the room was filled with soul stirring music which even swelled above the thunderous rumble of my battering on the drum.

"The music ended just as a hand fell upon my shoulder. I looked around to see Fennimore. Outside the great Golden State Limited was panting impatiently, waiting for a clearance on the board. Fennimore was a good scout. Though I was uneasy for a few days, he didn't turn me in.

"During my stay here, a large number of local stores in the neighborhood were looted. Oscar Klose, the city marshal, couldn't be on the day job and stall off prowlers during the night. Since he was a friendly guy, I hit on a scheme to help him out. The robbers were quite clever and figured their raids for after mid-night when the whole town went to sleep except the night operator. As my office was in the center of town, they would post a look out near the office to watch me, and then go on feeling secure. Since most ops sleep on the job, even this was just a precaution.

"Oscar fixed his telephone so that there was a direct wire between the depot and his house. If I saw anything suspicious, I'd act sleepy, turn down the lights and pile up on the telegraph table for a snooze. While there, I'd call the marshal and report. But as I said before, the gang was smart. They drew me out of the office on one pretense or another, or made use of every chance I gave them by leaving for some reason. One particular night I went out to put out a fire in the culvert west of the station, before I realized it was a decoy. By the time I got back, the men had looted a store back of the depot. Later that night, I took a bucket down to the town pump half a block from the station to get some drinking water. This time I carried a gun, and was I trigger happy? When a dark shadow seemed to jump at me I filled the pump full of bullet holes and awakened the town for the rest of the night. I made the story good, because I hated to admit I had shot at only the shadow of the pump; but as long as I was there we never discovered the identity of the robbers.

Fog rolled into town about 4 a.m. from Lake Michigan, sometimes so thick that it made railroading hazardous. When I reported the first section of Number 80 by at 4:30 one morning, Phil Cassidy, the train dispatcher told me to hold second 80 until the first had cleared the Blue Island yards. Signals could not be passed and Phil didn't want any rear end collisions on his trick.

"I threw a red semaphore and went out to place a torpedo on the track. I had a red fusee ready, so I lit it and placed it on the engineer's side when I heard second 80 coming. She hit the gun and rolled on, without whistling an answer to my warnings. Seventy or eighty cars went by, then the crummy. Heading back to the key, I reported what had happened to Phil.

"Some days later, I was called in for the investigation, and was surprised to be confronted by Engineer Brown who had piled up Number 88 on the C&A. He gave me one long look then admitted that the whole train crew had been asleep. Before he left, he told me off as being the jinx, that was the last time we met.

"About a week later, I was sent to Joliet to work nights. They said the job was easy; I'd sell tickets, take train orders and make out expense bills for three or four carloads of freight. But a queer thing struck me the first day I started. Under the counter was a six-shooter all ready for action, while on the wall was a riot call box.

"Three nights later I was standing at the ticket window making a sale, when a chunk of mud struck me in the eye. I saw the hoodlum who had patted me and threw a slug after him. As I ran outside after him, I met the Bowser gang. The boys ran that part of town and if I wanted to work in peace, I'd have to join without asking questions. I learned that the tower men who pumped down the gates all belonged, but before I became a member I was saved the trouble.

"F. C. Runnells, the chief dispatcher, came along and told me to report for duty in the dispatcher's office. I went to work there the next evening."

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3 by 2nd Lt. Erylne Conel

Fly to Funlands! Americans can now get passports freely for travel through out the Western Hemisphere, from Hudson's Bay to Argentina. And right inside the good old USA you can fly to your fill of fun. So chart your course for the Metropolitan Fishing Tournament in Miami, Florida (Feb. 24 to April 21); or the New Orleans Mardi Gras Festival (Feb. 28 to March 5), or the St. Petersburg, Fla. Silver Jubilee of "Festival of the States" (April 1 to April 6), or how about that good old California sunshine?

L. A. in 14 hours. Although the "Boss of the Family" hadn't travelled much by air and wasn't yet aware of its wonders, Saturday I saw some off to Los Angeles on a United Airlines plane. Here's the trip log: 11 AM. Flight 23 scheduled to leave Municipal, but due to mechanical adjustments, we were advised plane take off time would be one hour later. 11:15: I went into the United Airlines office to get information about Flight 23 for this column. Slick chick, Miss Alita Ingram misunderstood my questions and somehow gave me the idea that passengers for Flight 23 would go out on a special Flight No. 41 at 11:30. 11:25: Excited, we raced to the plane, a Douglas DC 4, 4 motored dreamboat with plenty of luxury for 44 passengers. But politely, and ever so firmly, the eager step into the plane was stopped and put into reverse. To our disappointment, Mr. Lee O'Farrell, the passenger agent, said "uh uh, this is Not your flight. This is a Special for C.A.B. Officials only. (Civil Aeronautics Board)".

Later, as we chatted, Mr. O'Farrell explained that before any plane, new to a route, can make any regular runs, C.A.B. Officials make the trip to okay the plane and equipment for the route.

12 noon: Flight 23 is up and away as scheduled, leaving me at Gate 6 with that all-alone feeling. 3:10 pm. First stop Omaha. 5:59 pm. Land at Denver. 9:27 pm. Hour and a half stop over at Salt Lake City. 1:59 AM. Hello L. A. Next morning: telegram from L. A. to Chicago: "Arrived safely. Had a Wonderful Trip. Love."

Note: For a 7 hour flight to L. A. try the pressurized Cabin Constellation, that breezes thru the Stratosphere. Suggestion: Air Terminals could keep nerves calmer, spirits higher by keeping waiting passengers better informed about flight, making use of their public address system and adding an arrival and departure chart for visual reference.

Going East? Next week I'll give you the route to the Finger Lakes Fun Region, as it was flown in a small Aeronca by Civil Air Patrol, Harvey Sqdn. 613-3 Officers, Capt. Neil A. Kingston and 2nd Lt. Fred Schrumm.

Checkpoints: Chicago is hub of the Air World. In a few minutes time I heard passengers called for flights to Ottawa, Montreal, San Francisco, New York and Mexico! 5,700 passengers flew from Miami to Havana in one week, an increase of 60 percent. A new magazine Holiday hit the stands March Volume 1. Issue 1 features aviation with an article Round the World in 6 Days. The February directory issue of the magazine Aviation gives engineering data on 57 American personal planes!

Special Delivery: of a new streamlined "Cub" was made February 20th to Viola and C.A.P. 2nd Lt. Fred Schrumm! Specifications: 85 Lungpower; Gross Wt. 6 lbs. 9 oz., Cruising Range, now 0; Name of model, Richard Ward Schrumm; Temporarily hangered at St. Margaret's Hospital, Hammond, Ind. Congratulations!

Airport News: Action at Rubinkam Airport. New Clubhouse going up as members ate sandwiches and put up sidings. On Washington's birthday there were four first cross-country solos by Rubinkam flyers: Garsuch, Boyle, Don Laturno and John Kuzera. The fields were till too wet for our Student "Candy" to take a flyer. That's all for now.

Mr. Plug-tugger's Lament...

Did you ever see such a sight in your life as Phineas Plug-tugger? Cords fray and fuses blow when Phineas P. comes in the house.

Sooner or later all "plug-tuggers" are weebegone. If you have one in your home it would be well to warn him of the wee that will soon befall. Tell him how much longer the cords and fuses will last if he pulls the plug out by the plug, not the wire—and gently.

And speaking of plugs—do you have enough convenience outlets for all the wonderful new electric appliances you're planning for your home? If you are beset with an "Outlet Octopus"—unsightly "double plugs on double plugs"—it's a good idea to find out about adequate wiring.

Plan adequate wiring now... be ready to enjoy all the new electrical appliances coming your way soon. See us or your electrical contractor for wiring information.

Membership application cards for the Cubs must be brought to the third and last meeting, Monday, March 4, 7:30 pm. in Tinley Park school gym.

The evening will be spent forming the Dens and Packs, assigning Den Mothers and Dads, Den Chiefs and Cubmasters to their units. Charter applications and adult member applications will be completed. The Organizational details will be directed by Mr. Harley Lowe, Assistant Chief Scout Executive of the Pokagon Trails Council of Hammond, Ind.

Nothing can be done without the majority vote of the membership on these plans. For this reason we are asking that each regular member bring someone who doesn't always have a chance to join us. Those of us who have cars are anxious to share them with you. Won't you give us a ring and arrange to join us next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 24, was:

"MIND"

The Golden Text was:

"Teach me, O Lord, the way of thy statutes; . . . Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law." (Ps. 119: 33, 34).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death. Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die. Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth." (John 4: 46-50).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Jesus demonstrated the power of Christian Science to heal mortal minds and bodies. But this power was lost sight of, and must again be spiritually discerned, taught, and demonstrated according to Christ's command, with 'signs following.' . . . Immortal Mind heals what eye hath not seen; but the spiritual capacity to apprehend thought and to heal by the Truth-power, is won only as man is found, not in self-righteousness, but reflecting the divine nature. The basis of all health, sinlessness, and immortality is the great fact that God is the only Mind; and this Mind must be not merely believed, but it must be understood." (pp. 179, 110, 339).

These birds produce the smaller, family-sized weights in demand now. The premium for this type of bird, over the heavier weights, last fall, prove its popularity.

Will consider placing started poults, 8 to 12 weeks of age, with farmers interested in turkeys. Birds at this age are ready for an open alfalfa field and a limited amount of equipment is required. The uncertainties, loss and detailed work of brooding are eliminated.

VETERANS MAKE KNOWN THEIR BONUS DEMANDS . . . A shouting but orderly crowd march upon the Ohio capital at Columbus, to demand special legislation for soldier bonus, unemployment compensation for strikers and homes for veterans. Marches on other state capitals is also in progress, while the nation's capital is receiving attention of Chicago veterans demanding the right to operate taxis in the Windy City. The marches have been more orderly than those following World War I, with final outcome still in doubt.

Other photographs indicate the extent of her reconversion job, after a few shopping days spent in New York City. Her Shangri-La dream came true.

STEEL CARTEL FILES

WASHINGTON.—Dozens of G.I. investigators have been working since the shooting war stopped to help win another war. This is a war against international big business, which recognized no national boundaries, which used countries only as market divisions for its products, and which at one time aided Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito just as much as it did France and England.

What the G.I. investigators have uncovered in Germany is a tribute to Nazi thoroughness and to the gullibility of American big business. For what it amounts to is a world plan by which Germany expanded its industrial capacity for war while simultaneously curbing the industrial capacity of this country and other potential enemies.

And the names of the same men who have been dickering with Truman over steel—Ben Fairless, Eugene Grace, et al.—have turned up in European files as part of the cartel which unwittingly played into the hands of the Nazis. It is a story which the leaders of the steel industry would like to forget. But the justice department hasn't forgotten it.

American participation in the steel cartel was decided upon as late as 1937—when there was no longer any doubt regarding Hitler's warlike intentions. By that time he had already invaded the Rhineland, showed his hand by sending arms to Franco, and boasted openly in speech after speech that Germany would dominate Europe.

The steel cartel files, seized in Luxembourg, reveal that S. M. Bash of Bethlehem Steel and A. G. Mundle of U. S. Steel took the initiative in binding their companies to the cartel. Four months later an agreement to divide up world markets was reached.

ANTITRUST ACT

The steel barons were careful about the Sherman antitrust act, however, and the minutes of the June, 1937, meeting reveal that no written agreement regarding U. S. markets was concluded.

In February, 1938, a delegation of European steel men came to the United States.

"Our representatives," the Luxembourg files showed, "obtained a very clear declaration of responsibility for the agreements from" Messrs. Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel, Ben Fairless of U. S. Steel, Rufus Wisor of Republic Steel, Frank Purnell of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, M. Hackett of Jones and Laughlin Steel, Charles Hook of Arco International, William Holloway of Wheeling Steel, Robert Wolcott of Lukens Steel, and Ernest Weir of the National Steel corporation (Weirten and Great Lakes steel).

Also included in the American group were Inland Steel, Newport Rolling Mills, Pittsburgh Steel, Otis, and the Allan Wood company.

RACE FOR WAR

What the steel barons agreed to was not only a division of markets but arrangements for price-maintenance. Quotas were set regarding the total production of each participating company, with fines levied against the firm if it exceeded its quota.

However, here is the pay-off. The Germans always exceeded their quotas, after which they politely paid their fines and then kept on speeding their output of steel in the race for war. Meanwhile, American and British firms stayed within their quotas and kept down their war machine.

In contrast with the Germans, American firms, when they exceeded their quotas, were contrite and apologetic. For instance, here is an item from the steel cartel minutes of April 18, 1939, which read:

"In regard to a recent shipment by the American group to Belgium, i.e., a home market, the American representative stated that he was taking this matter up with his group in order to avoid a recurrence."

How the cartel worked is also illustrated by a cable sent by Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel to Sir Charles Wright in London, dated January 12, 1938, which read:

"Glad to have your message and talk with Elliot. I feel sure there will be no question about performance of member companies. Our only difficulty will come from outside and uncontrolled interests. It will be our hope to protect prices and bring all influence possible on uncontrolled interests."

CAPITAL CHAFF

Bob Hannegan will soon launch an all-out drive to get the President's legislation program passed on Capitol Hill. Hannegan's first target will be the minimum wage bill increasing minimum wages to 65 cents an hour. . . . President Truman has begun a major shake-up of the White House staff. The first to go was George Allen who becomes an RFC director. Next will be another Mississippian, the President's naval aid, Capt. James Vardaman Jr., who will become a member of the Federal Reserve board.

A PEOPLE FINDING A HOMELAND

LESSON TEXT: Joshua 1:1-4; 23:1-11.
MEMORY SELECTION: Thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.—Deuteronomy 8:10.

God is the Lord of nations as well as of homes, and he is concerned that those who honor him in their homes have opportunity to serve him in their national life. This was true in a special way with Israel, but it is also true of us today.

Ready to enter the Promised Land, the people had to part with their great leader, Moses, who was not permitted to enter. The time comes when even the mightiest of men fall, but life must go on and new leadership must be found.

1. The Changed Leader (Josh. 1: 1-4).

1. Workers Die—God's Work Goes On (vv. 1, 2).

God buries his workmen at the end of their day of labor, but God's work goes on. The people had become attached to Moses and had learned to trust his leadership, even though they often murmured. With his death we might have assumed that there would be a letdown, but that was not in God's plan.

The Lord works through men. He gives them abilities and uses them for his glory, often in a way which astonishes them and others. But let them not become proud, for God has someone to take their place when they are gone. They are not indispensable.

2. The Need Is the Same, So Is the Blessing (vv. 3, 4).

The promise given to Moses was still good. God's promises are always good. They are the only really stable thing in a trembling universe. The question is, Are we ready to take him at his word?

They were to step out by faith. The land was promised to them only as the sole of their foot should tread upon it. Israel never took out the full promise of verse 4. They lacked faith.

God honors those who believe him and who move forward by faith to plant the foot of spiritual conquest in new territory. Some are doing it now. Are we?

The enemies of God's people were many and mighty, but they were not able to stand in the way of God's people when they were moving forward for him. Here again, Israel failed. They did not drive them out, because they did not take God at his word. The application of that truth to us is obvious.

II. The Unchanging God (Josh. 23: 1-11).

Between our first scripture and this selection will be found the history of the conquest of the land (at least, of the larger part of it), and the division of the territory between the tribes.

Years have passed quickly, and the new leader, Joshua, is now an old man, soon to go to his reward. He gathers the elders who represented the people and gave them good counsel for the days ahead, even as he recalls the blessings of the past.

1. God Did Help (vv. 1-3).

Israel had been in many hard battles. They had gone through the trials of pioneer days in a new and unfamiliar land. Now they were established and at peace. Perhaps they were recalling their mighty exploits and their own sacrificial efforts.

Joshua reminds them that it was God who fought for them (v. 3). We need just such a reminder in our land today.

2. God Will Help (vv. 4, 5). Joshua had a word of encouragement for the days ahead. There was much yet to be done. The land had not been fully taken. He reminded them of God's help in the past, so that they would depend on it in the future.

It is one mark of a great man that he looks beyond the end of his own short existence and plans for the future.

What about the future? Joshua reminded them that every blessing they had received, every victory they had won, everything had come from the hand of God. There and there alone was their hope for the future. And it was enough!

3. Help Yourself (vv. 6-11). To keep true in the land where their neighbors engaged in idol worship and all manner of immorality required definite action on the part of Israel.

They were not to deviate in the slightest from God's way, "to the right hand or to the left" (v. 6), for a little beginning in the wrong direction winds up in awful departure from him.

They were not even to swear by the heathen gods, not even to mention them. They were to "cleave" to the Lord, a graphic presentation of the close relation between God and his people.

There are many thoughts here which can be profitably applied to our daily lives. Faith in God calls for stalwart action and separated living for him.

TURNING POINT

W. N. U. RELEASE

CHAPTER I

"Steady, Tex!" Jane Keller patted her horse as she drew rein at the crest of the hill trail.

She was young and slim and straight, and her old corduroys made her look like a boy.

"A mighty handsome boy," old MacDowell always said; "ain't any girl in these parts can touch her!"

She turned in her saddle now to watch the lights spring up in the distant ranch house, small and faint and flickering, like candles in a fog. Dusk was down there in the valley, but up on the hill trail there was a yellow light behind the sycamores, and great flares of yellow and orange and red in the sunset sky. Below her lay the private road to "Las Palomas," her brother's ranch; it crossed the hill trail and the bridge to meet the State highroad, five miles away. There was a big cliff at the bend. Jim Keller talked of blasting it, but he had never had the time nor the men to spare; it loomed there still in the midst of trees, a rugged sentinel.

Tex put down his head and began to crop grass; it was supper time but his mistress did not stir. She was thinking, thinking hard. Then, lifting her eyes to the darkening outline of the distant cliff, she saw a sudden glow of light and, the next instant, the headlights of a big high-power touring car emerged. The girl recognized it with a start of surprise; it was Jim's car, and Jim was not at the wheel. Urging her horse, she galloped down the trail to intercept the car before it reached the bridge. A nearer view showed her old MacDowell in it, and a stranger at the wheel. As she rode up they stopped the car.

"Mac," she panted, "where's Jim?"

"He's all right; don't you get scared, Jane," the old man reassured her, trying to get out of the car.

Jane stopped him. "You've hurt your arm—what's wrong, Mac?"

The headlights of the car illumined her as she leaned from the saddle to question him, but it left the man at the wheel in the shadow. Jane felt his eyes; they made her move uneasily and cast a quick glance at him.

"It's this way, Jane," the old foreman explained soberly, "Jim's stayed behind; he's got the sheriff an' a party out. You see, we figured we'd gotten Jordan skinned, tight as a chicken for roasting, but somehow he broke loose—when we were gettin' water for the car—you know that place near Simmons' well? We gave chase—both of us, an' I fell an' sprained my blamed old arm; if it hadn't been for this young man here—he came along an' helped me out an' motored me back. Jim was kinder afraid Jordan might hit it back here an' he sent me to warn the men. Jim's all right, he's got the whole bunch with him."

"Jordan couldn't get back here tonight on foot," Jane objected.

"He's got pals, might get a horse—or a lift in a car. Anyways, I'm here an' say, you oughtn't to be up here alone," old Mac said, in his fatherly way. "You ride along beside the car, if you won't get in, an' let this young man ride Tex home."

Jane laughed. "I'll make it; I'll beat you to it!"

"This young man wants work on a ranch," Mac added, putting his well hand on the stranger's shoulder; "this is Miss Jane Keller, the sister of the boss," he said to his companion, impressively.

Jane caught the outline of the man's head as he swung off his hat, but she spoke to Mac with her crisp little tone of authority.

"When you get to the ranch send him to me; I'll see what I can do for him until Jim comes. I'm going to take the short cut; Tex can beat any old car, Mac!"

"Jane—Miss Jane!" Mac wanted to stop her, to make her ride beside them, but she was off like a shot; they could just see the beautiful dark outline of her horse as he leaped the creek. "Ain't that like her, bless her!" old Mac laughed in his beard. "She ain't scared of a thing for herself—only for Jim! An' he'd be scared stiff if he thought she was out an' Jordan might be here!"

"Tell me about this Jordan; I can't just make it out. Cattle thief or what?" asked the young man at the wheel.

"It's this way—take that turn, there's Las Palomas up there—Jordan used to work here; he's a good cattleman but he drinks like blazes, a good many of 'em do, but he took to dope running, sellin' it here to the cowpunchers. Jim caught him at it an' there was a big row. Jordan, half drunk, tried to kill Jim. That settled it; he was fired. Then he took to cattle rustling an' he's got a gang of cut-throats along with him; maybe some of our fellers are in cahoots with the gang to get dope; we don't know! He's cleared out some of our best cattle. Yesterday he got drunk an' came back to brag. Jim Keller was furious; he lassoed Jordan like a steer, we tied him up an' started. Jim was goin' to have him jailed sure, but he got away; you came along, as you know. Well, he'll try to get even—sure as shootin'!" Old Mac stopped, with an expressive shrug.

"He's likely to kill Keller?"

MacDowell nodded. "Sure! Jane, too, if she stands in his way; he's just as vindictive as a rattler. Get me, young man?"

The younger man kept his eyes steadily on the unfamiliar road, but he uttered an exclamation of surprise. "You don't mean that the rascal would try to hurt that young girl?"

"If he thought he could get her an' hold her over Jim's head for ransom, he'd do it. Jane's in just as much danger as Jim, that's why I had to come back."

"By Jove, I wish I'd known that today—when he bolted past me—before you an' Keller came up!"

Old Mac chuckled. "Seen Jane Keller, eh? That's how all the cowpunchers feel! Well, you know now, son, an' you've got an all-fired good chance to make good," he drawled. "To make good!"

The words struck the other man like a blow; his face burned in the darkness, his steel-gray eyes shone strangely, but he said nothing.

"There's the house, we're goin' to the men's quarters. That there row of windows toward us—all lit up—belongs to the sickroom. One of Jim's friends was took down with pneumonia here an' they got a trained nurse an' kep' him; he's a heap better. Old Teresa says he's got a devil!" Mac added, laughing. "Kind of fine feller, name of Stenhart—Max Stenhart."

Stenhart heard it. He sprang up in bed with a cry, his hands shaking at his throat, his eyes staring at the darkness of the window.

Mac heard a smothered exclamation at his side and sensed the sudden swerving of the big car.

"Strike a stone? Here, shut her off, there's one of the men—Sandy!" MacDowell roared as the car stopped, "you come an' take the mail in—where's Pete Rooney? He can run this car to the garage. Here, you," he put his hand on his new driver's shoulder, "you go right up to the house, front door there, an' see what Jane says about your stayin'—then you come to the quarters for eats, see?"

The young man nodded, helping the old foreman to climb down; then he heard MacDowell telling them about Jordan's escape.

"Get your guns handy, boys," he sang out. "You know that snake; he'll be after the yearlings again—he may get here any time!"

The newcomer did not listen to the rest of it; he turned away into the darkness and made a feint of going directly to the house. Half way he stood still; the lights from the windows flowed across the short turf in long pools of radiance, reaching nearly to his feet. He caught the sound of dishes in the kitchen, and an open door gave him a glimpse of the Chinese cook busy at his task. In the distance somewhere a man was singing lustily in Spanish; far off he heard the scarcely distinguishable sounds of cattle in the corrals. He moved swiftly under the lighted windows, trying to count them, then, suddenly, he heard Stenhart's voice! After all these years he knew it instantly, and his hands clenched at his sides until the nails bit deep into the flesh. Something tightened in his throat, he could scarcely breathe. Then came a feeling of savage triumph; he had won out, he was here and Stenhart was here!

Slowly and cautiously, he took a step nearer; he was in the deep shadow of the house and the window ledge was on a level with his eyes. There was no curtain, and he had a clear view of the low-ceiled room. A trained nurse stood at a table beside the bed, dropping some medicine slowly into a glass, and the lamplight was focused on her white uniform; but beyond her, in the shadowed four-poster, lay the invalid. He had raised himself on his elbow and was talking to her, a slight flush deepening the color of his handsome face. The man at the window caught the sharp clean outline of his profile, the fevered brilliance of his dark eyes, the hollows in his cheeks. There was a look of mental conflict, of unrest.

"It's bitten in," the outsider thought, with a kind of bitter satisfaction; "after all, it's bitten in!"

Then something, the daredevil in him, made him lean forward and speak slowly, distinctly, loudly, one word:

"Sherwin!"

Stenhart heard it. He sprang up in bed with a cry, his hands shaking at his throat, his eyes staring at the darkness of the window. His tormentor, seeing it, laughed grimly, but he saw the nurse turn and come toward him. She must not find him there! Softly, swiftly, he dropped back into the night and made his way to the front door.

"MacDowell has just phoned from the garage how kind you were when he sprained his arm, and I want to thank you. We, my brother and I, both think a lot of old Mac!"

The girl had risen from her seat at Jim's old desk as she spoke, and she faced him. He saw the fine curve of her chin and throat, and the black-lashed blue eyes. She was an upstanding girl; she could run the ranch alone in Jim's absence. The men all looked up to her, held her in high esteem.

The newcomer did not speak and she went on quickly: "Mac says you'd like something to do about the ranch and we need men, anyway. 'What—' she smiled frankly—'please tell me what you can do best?'"

The man reddened. Of course he had to expect something like this, but he was not one to whom falsehood came easily, and to lie to a fine, frank girl like this! But, after all, it wasn't altogether a lie!

"My last job was bookkeeping," he said, and then, as he saw the swift change in her expression, he added: "Not just the thing for a ranch, I'm afraid, but if I can turn my hand to something out-of-doors, I'd like it."

"You're from the East?" her blue eyes considered him gravely, impersonally, and then she smiled. "I'm not sure but that you're a godsend! I've been trying to straighten up Jim's accounts and it's perfectly hopeless, he's so splashy with ink and so bad at figures! I'd be glad if you'd try your hand at these tomorrow." As she spoke she swept a bunch of dog-eared old books with her fingers.

He came nearer and began to turn them over, snatching at this strange opportunity to get into the house, the house where Stenhart was! He ran his index finger along under the name—written in Jim Keller's big sprawling handwriting.

"El Rancho de las Palomas— you cling to the Spanish down here, eh?"

She laughed. "'Las Palomas' sounds so much better than just plain English. Besides, there used to be many doves here—there are still. Can you untangle those figures, do you think?"

"Surely I can—they're quite simple."

"Simple? I was a little startled!" she laughed softly again. "Then you'll do this until Jim comes? I—" she hesitated, blushing unaccountably; "I can't make any terms—of course you understand that? My brother's the boss, but if you can wait—"

"Oh, that's all right, you'll be feeding and lodging me, you see!" For the first time, he laughed and his face lighted up. "Money isn't the only thing I came West for!"

The girl gave him a quick, questioning glance, but his face was in the shadow and she made nothing of it.

"Oh, I know—adventure!" she said, watching him.

He nodded grimly. "The great adventure!" he said, in an odd tone. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Administration Problems

While the Veterans' administration is still several weeks behind on various phases of its work, it has made tremendous headway during the past two months towards keeping its business current, according to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, director.

This tremendous agency is now handling the insurance, job training, farm, home and business loans, pensions and other features of veterans' benefits for more than 13 million veterans and a potential business of 20 million veterans.

"To do this job it is short of office help, in medical help and in staffing its hospitals. Here are a few statistics as of February 1 showing how far behind schedule the administration is on handling its business—out of 500,000 applications for training under servicemen's readjustment act, 91,176 are in training, 258,781 have been declared eligible and the balance are pending; on insurance, the department is about 20 days behind and is now handling direct premium payments on 1,073,712 policies with 10,357,788 policies being paid by allotment; there are more than 2,000,000 disability claims on file with 1,567,000 adjudicated, 1,038,000 allowed and 458,000 pending.

This office has received scores of letters asking when they will receive pensions, when they will receive subsistence checks. To all such inquiries we can only advise patience, since we believe the VA is doing all it can under the circumstances.

Questions and Answers

Q. I have a brother in the army in Italy. He has been overseas 13 months. His parents are 65 years of age and have no one at home with them. Would it be possible to get him discharged because of his parents' age and health? If so, where would I write for particulars?—A reader, East Lake, Minn.

A. Application for a "hardship" discharge must be filed by the soldier with his commanding officer. It might help if the parents also filed all particulars with their local Red Cross, since the army asks the Red Cross to investigate the case eventually.

Q. Where would a person find out the details as to where wives of servicemen overseas are able to make application for transportation to Japan when they are permitted to join their husbands?—Mrs. L. W., Omaha, Neb.

A. The war department says all such applications must originate with the soldier who files his application with his commanding officer.

Q. I would appreciate receiving information concerning civilian occupations which may be comparable to assignments held by officers while in service, particularly that of adjutant.—C. R. F., Long Branch, N. J.

A. Your nearest office of the United States Employment service will have a list of occupations available.

Q. My husband was a World War I veteran. I filled out a blank for pension December 14, 1945. Do you know how long before I will get it? Will I get $45? How much will my two boys get, one 16, the other 14 years old?—Mrs. P. S., Lilbourn, Mo.

A. You do not give sufficient information. If your husband's death was service-connected, you might get $50, plus $15 for the first child and $13 for each additional minor child; if not service-connected, $35 plus $10 for the first and $5 for each additional child. If you have filed your claim and given all particulars, the Veterans' administration will determine the correct amount in due time.

Q. I am a disabled veteran of World War I with a 15 per cent disability rating. Due to this disability and heart ailment, am unable to work. How can I get this rating raised? It was granted in 1928.—W. J. E., Columbia City, Ind.

A. The VA says you should make application to the regional office where your original rating was granted for a re-examination. If the rating board says you are entitled to an increased disability rating, it will be granted.

Q. I have a son who has been in the army signal corps almost 33 months and my wife and I are all alone on a large farm. We would like to know if there is a possible chance of him getting home this spring, or if we could try to get him home?—H. S. B., Carlton, Minn.

A. I would say there is a good chance for him to be home this spring, since General Eisenhower has said all men with 30 months' service as of April 20, or with 45 points, will be home or on their way home by April 30 this year.

ALMOST everyone knows that Joe DiMaggio is a great hitter and a brilliant outfielder with a stout arm. But what about the matter of psychology or philosophy, which is also a big but hidden part of sport?

DiMaggio

Most ball players, like most other athletes, are cursed by tension, especially in slumps. They are nearly all keyed up beyond the safety level. After bad days they can't sleep. They begin to brood. They are tightened up. This has never happened to DiMaggio, who is now in the sunny South getting his legs in shape.

"I'll give you my philosophy," Joe told me a few weeks ago. "I rarely worry about anything if they will only let me alone. I do the best I can and if that isn't good enough I can't help it. I never bothered about making good with the Yankees when I first reported, for I felt that if I didn't make good there was always something else. I quit baseball when I was around 14 or 15 years old because I got bored with it. And I never thought I'd get very far. Now when I get in a batting slump it still doesn't bother me."

"Baseball is a great game, but it still isn't the only way to make a living. Not with the taxes they throw at you. I never played a ball game in my life where I didn't give all I had. But I took my bad days with my good days. My bad days never had me worried. They still had the best I had to give. You can't be good at any game when you are fretting, worrying, all loaded down with too much tension."

"I never expected to be a good ball player when I started, and whatever happens to me is still velvet. I'm not worrying about being in shape this next spring. I figure I'll be in shape. If I have a bad year it won't be my fault and it isn't going to wreck my life."

"My philosophy of life is to give the best you have, and if that isn't good enough, try something else. I have another angle—I haven't any interest in anyone else's business. I still don't see why so many have an interest in my business. After all, I'm just a ball player, giving what I have to give on the ball field. That's my only job. I'll let everybody alone if everybody will let me alone."

DiMaggio happens to be 100 per cent right in this philosophy. Why shouldn't a fellow live his own life?

Picking Season Opens

The Louis-Conn pickers are already warming up, getting ready for one of the most garrulous campaigns on record.

Gene Tunney, as you may have heard before, is naming Louis in from one to three rounds, "providing that Louis is even close to the Louis of four years ago."

Tommy Loughran disagrees. Tommy votes for Conn. The fact that Tommy was one of our best boxers undoubtedly influenced this verdict in Conn's favor.

"If Conn gets back in shape, which I think he will," Loughran said, "I believe he will win. Billy may have lost some of his speed but so has Louis who after a long layoff at the age of 32 can be even more affected by it. Conn was much faster than Louis in their first meeting and he will be just as fast this time."

"Hard punchers always had trouble with good boxers," Loughran continued, "Dempsey had most of his trouble with Tom Gibbons and Gene Tunney. In 35 rounds against this pair, Jack had only one knockdown. Billy Conn has always been a good boxer and at the age of 28 there is no reason why he shouldn't be at least close to his best. It will take a lot of hard work, of course, but at 180 or 182 he should be stronger, a harder puncher and still the better boxer."

It may be recalled that Tommy Loughran was the sparring partner who tipped many of the sharper ones to Dempsey's coming downfall before the first Tunney fight in Philadelphia. In a fast three-round workout shortly before the big scrap, Loughran outpointed Jack by a wide margin, although Dempsey was throwing all the punches he had in stock that day.

These two opinions are only the beginning of a nation-wide debate that will soon be picking up added steam as the two heavyweights move into their respective training camps. The flow of words will soon reach tidal-wave proportions.

Old-Timers' Session

In a gathering of old-timers a few days ago, one made this point.

"While Conn is much faster on his feet than Louis ever was, don't forget that Louis is just as fast with his two fists as Conn is. Maybe faster. Louis can wreck you with a short punch and he can throw these punches with lightning speed. They travel faster than the eye can follow. Louis won't lose much of this hand speed, although his reflexes are bound to be slower."

More than STOPS Nutritional SCOURS

Help your calves get started right with Anadex Kaf-Kaps. Wisconsin research shows most calf troubles from scours are due to a lack of vitamin A and Niacin. The same formula that protected calves in the experiment station research by preventing and curing nutritional scours is used in Anadex Kaf-Kaps.

Safe easy to use. Requires about 25 Kaf-Kaps per calf. Economical to feed. Packed in 25's and 100's. Come in and get a supply today.

Our Policy on

NEW CAR ORDERS

IN ACCORDANCE WITH FAIR PROCEDURE

We are now accepting orders for earliest possible delivery of new cars. However, as you know, there are not enough new cars for all who want them. Therefore, we want to make a clear statement of our policy—so that everyone will know exactly how we are handling orders for and delivery of new cars during the current shortage period.

1 We intend to fill orders for new cars in the order in which they are received. There are two exceptions to this basic rule—

2 We will definitely reserve a percentage of our cars for those who have served in the Armed Forces. We feel sure that all our customers will agree with the justice of this exception.

3 If definite need for a new car is a factor, we will, in the public interest, determine such cases on the basis of the now abolished, but publicly accepted, OPA priority lists.

This policy is in your interest. We are following it because we want to serve you fairly and well today as in the past.

The Ford Motor Company and we ourselves are making every effort to deliver your new car promptly and honestly.
